DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 5-7, and 9-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Keller (US. Pub. No. 2004/0220582 A1).

Keller discloses an apparatus having first and second baseplates (see Fig.9, ref.53), the first baseplate having a first vertebral body contacting surface and first, second and third confronting surfaces angled with respect to one another, the second baseplate having a second vertebral body contacting surface and first, second and third confronting surfaces (see Fig.4) angled with respect to one another. The apparatus further comprises at least one shaft (Fig.4, ref. 20) having a longitudinal axis and a shaft distal end having a top and bottom set of first, second and third forward surfaces (Fig.4, refs.4, 17) angled with respect to one another for engagement with the confronting surfaces (Fig.4) of the baseplates for axial rotationally aligning the baseplates with respect to the longitudinal axis of the shaft in at least two of a plurality of possible axial rotationally aligned positions (para.0040). When the apparatus is engaged to the orthopedic device during manipulation at least two of the top set of first, second and third forward surfaces of the apparatus engage at least two of the first, second and third confronting surfaces of the first vertebral body and at least two of the bottom set of first, second and third forward surfaces of the apparatus engage at least two of the first, second and third confronting surfaces of the second vertebral body (see Fig.9).

Keller further discloses wherein the forward surfaces (Fig.4, refs. 4, 17) are angled with respect to one another at an orientation angle that facilitates engagement of the apparatus with the device in a plurality of rotated positions with respect to the device such that possible engagement orientations approaches include at least an anterior insertion approach and at least one anterior-lateral insertion approach (para.0040).

Keller further discloses wherein the forward surfaces (Fig.4, refs. 4, 17) are adapted for engagement with the device such that either an anterior-laterally facing forward surface and an anteriorly facing forward surface is mateable with any of an anterior-laterally facing confronting surface and an anteriorly facing confronting surface.

Keller further discloses wherein the anteriorly facing forward surface (see Fig.4, ref.17) is spaced from the anteriorly facing confronting surface when two anterior-laterally facing surfaces are engaged with two anterior-laterally facing forward surfaces (see Fig.4, ref.4). This spacing is caused by a stop (see Fig.4, ref. 15) that controls the spacing of the device and the apparatus (para.0030). Keller also discloses wherein engagement of at least two of the forward surfaces (see Fig.4, ref. 4) with at least two of the confronting surfaces significantly limits movement and rotation of the at least one of the baseplates (ref. 53) relative to the apparatus (see Fig.9).

Keller further discloses a vertebral body stop (Fig.4, ref.96), wherein the stop prevents over-insertion of the device into an intervertebral space (para.0040).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Keller (US Pub. No. 2004/0220582 A1).

Keller discloses the claimed invention except for the forwarding surfaces being angled with respect to one another at an orientation angle of approximately 33.4 degrees. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have constructed the forward surfaces at an orientation angle of approximately 33.4 degrees, since it has been held that discovering an optimum value of a result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 4-7, and 9-11 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
